FIRE ENGINE IN CRASH; FARMER BADLY INJURED

C. W. Peters Hurt As Auto Makes Left Hand Turn Near Biglerville.

ENGINE ON WAY BACK FROM FIRE

C. W. Peters, 55, a retired farmer residing near Biglerville, suffered a fractured pelvis this morning at 7 o'clock when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by the Biglerville fire truck which was returning from a chimney fire at the home of Robert Garretson, a mile and a half north of Biglerville.

Peters was brought to the Warner hospital where he was said to be resting as comfortably as could be expected, although a fractured pelvis is always considered serious.

Peters was riding in a car driven by Charles A. Cleaver, 60, who works on the Peters farm.

The two men started from Peters home after a fire was reported at the home of Robert Garretson. They had gone about 100 yards on the Biglerville road when they noticed traffic returning from the fire, whereupon they decided to turn back.

As the car neared the road leading into Peters' home, Cleaver asked his companion if it was all right to make a left-hand turn from the main highway. Peters is said to have replied in the affirmative.

As Cleaver's machine started to make the turn it was struck by the fire truck, driven by John W. Deardorff, Biglerville.

Peters was thrown out of the car and caught between the machine and a steep embankment along the highway. Deardorff kept the fire truck under control after the crash. Deardorff told Corporal R. G. Schwartz, of the local sub-station of the state highway motor patrol, that he was driving only 30 miles an hour at the time. He was corroborated by M. A. Shue, Biglerville, who was riding on the truck, and B. G. Walter, Biglerville, who was driving his car directly behind the fire truck.

Fire Truck Damaged

Damage to the front end of the fire truck was estimated at $100. A headlight and fender were broken and the frame was bent. Cleaver's car was damaged to the extent of about $75. Both rear wheels were broken and the rear of the body was caved in.

The fire at the Garretson home was confined to the chimney. It was quickly extinguished and damage was said to be small.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Slonaker

Funeral services were held from the home Sunday afternoon for Mrs. Emma Margaret Slonaker, widow of Charles E. Slonaker, who died at her home on Steinwehr avenue last Thursday morning. The Rev. J. B. Reed, pastor of the Biglerville United Brethren church, officiated, assisted by the Rev. William Beattie, pastor of the Gettysburg United Brethren church. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

Palbearers were Harry Trostle, Ernest Ohler, Oscar Lupp, Emmert Kime, Abner S. Mills and Samuel Dayhoff.

Alice Brown Estate Is Valued At $3,200

The will of Alice Brown, late of East Berlin, was entered to probate in the office of C. G. Taughinbaugh, register and recorder, by Purdum May Stough, executrix. The estate is valued at $3,200.

Letters of administration on the estate of Joseph Hoover, late of New Oxford, were granted to Louise S. Hoover. The estate is valued at $1,200.

MISSION SOCIETY MEETS

The women's missionary society of the Gettysburg classic held its fall institute at the Zion Reformed church in Arendtsville, Saturday, with Mrs. J. E. Renoll, Hanover, president, in the chair. Four minute talks by members featured the morning session. Members from all parts of Adams county and many sections of York county were in attendance.

MUMMERS HERE OFFERED PRIZES

Moose Lodge Announces List For Parade Here Friday Night.

Prizes worth several hundred dollars have been offered by Gettysburg merchants to masqueraders who will parade here on Friday night. The event is being sponsored by the Moose lodge this year and a greater celebration than any previous year is forecast by the committee in charge.

There are 48 prizes for the many mummies who are expected to take part in the Halloween parade. All of them are donations made by leading merchants of this community. The route of the parade has not been decided upon, the committee said today, but it will be announced later this week.

Many Prizes Offered

Among the prizes that have been offered to local mummies are the following:

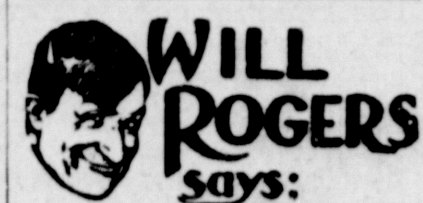

A hand-bag will be given by the News Stand drug store as first prize to the best dressed lady, while H. B. Bender and Son will give $2 in cash for a second prize. The funniest dressed lady will receive a pair of gloves from Harris Brothers, and the best dressed man will get $5 in cash from the Moose lodge.

The funniest dressed man will be given a necktie by the Young Men's shop, and the most comical couple will receive $2 in cash from Tipton's studio. The best Lincoln will receive an umbrella from Dougherty and Hartley, and as second prize, the John C. Lower company will give a box of cigars. The American store will give $2 in cash to the best dressed George Washington, while the Gettysburg hardware store will give a scout knife for second prize and a thermos bottle for third prize.

Best Uncle Sam

The best Uncle Sam will receive a prize worth $1.50 and the second prize will be $1.00 from the Moose lodge. The best dressed boy from 12 to 18 years will receive a stainless steel knife from George M. Zerling; the second best, a watch and the third a flashlight, also from Zerling's.

The best dressed girl from 12 to 18 will receive pair of hose from Keiper brothers, the second best a hand-bag from Stallsmith's News Stand drug store and the third best (Continued on Second Page)

To the Editor of The Times:

Santa Monica, Calif., Oct. 27.—Oa-la-gah, Oklahoma, my real old home, had a fine celebration Saturday. Sure sorry I couldn't make it. Unemployment is terrible, but employment is worse. A prominent miniature golf course out here was robbed the other night. The bandits got five "putters," thirteen balls and eighty-five cents in currency.

Stanford university has always been kinder hard to get into, but after Saturday's game with Southern California they would take in any moron that couldn't even spell football, as long as he looked like he could carry one.

Yours,

Will Rogers.

3 HURT ON WAY HOME FROM GRID GAME SATURDAY

Harrisburg Youth Is Seriously Injured In Crash Near Twin Bridges.

TRIED TO PASS ANOTHER CAR

Three young men, returning home from the Gettysburg-Bucknell football game here, Saturday afternoon, were injured, one seriously, when the car in which they were riding sideswiped another machine at Twin Bridges on the Harrisburg road. The accident occurred at 5:30 o'clock.

Gilbert Hollern, 28, of Harrisburg, the most seriously injured, is in the Warner hospital here suffering from concussion of the brain and contusions on the face and body.

He was a passenger in a car owned and operated by Arthur H. Elrick, 37, of Steelton, who suffered lacerations of the face, neck and hands and contusions on the right knee. James O'Donnell, 25, also of Steelton, had his forehead lacerated.

The trio were traveling north on the Harrisburg road. At Twin Bridges, Elrick attempted to pass the automobile of Raymond Hall, of Paterson, New Jersey, traveling in the same direction. Hall also was on his way home from the football game.

A fender of Elrick's car caught a fender on Hall's machine, causing the former's sedan to roll over four times, throwing out the occupants. Hall kept his car under control after the sideswiping.

Elrick's machine was almost totally demolished. The top was sheared off, the four fenders were torn from the body and even the battery was broken up and the plates scattered about the wreckage.

Passing motorists brought Elrick, Hollern and O'Donnell to the Warner hospital. Elrick and O'Donnell were discharged later after their injuries were dressed.

Corporal R. G. Schwartz, of the local sub-station of the state highway motor patrol, investigated the accident.

The Rev. Edward H. Jones, pastor Carlisle presbytery, which embraces Adams county, will have representatives at the meeting. Judge William H. Hargest, Harrisburg, will preside.

Jacob H. Swisher Buys Business Here

Jacob H. Swisher, West Middle street, a tailor for Bream, The Tailor, Chambersburg street, for a number of years, has purchased the cleaning and pressing business of J. Sterling Bollinger, North Washington street. Possession was given today. Mr. Bollinger, who conducted the business for four years, will enter the state highway motor patrol school at Harrisburg on Thursday.

Pleads Guilty To Embezzlement Charge

West Chester, Oct. 27 (AP).—Pleading guilty to the embezzlement of $1700 from the Parkersburg state bank, Everett Hogg, 28, former cashier of the bank, today was sentenced to serve one year in the Chester county jail. Hogg said he took the money for speculation in the stock market.

TRAINING FLIGHT

Lakehurst, Oct. 27 (AP).—The navy's dirigible Los Angeles took off this morning on a training flight which was to take it as far south as Washington. Lieutenant Commander Clark, in command of the ship, said he planned to pass over Philadelphia, Baltimore and the capital, and after returning at sunset, to swing over New York city.

Legion Auxiliary Meets Tonight In Y. W. C. A. At 7:30

Final arrangements will be completed tonight at the regular meeting of the Woman's auxiliary of the American Legion for the card party to be given Wednesday evening of this week in the Knights of Columbus rooms. The newly elected officers of the auxiliary will be in charge of the meeting tonight and a full attendance is urged in order to have the greatest support from the membership for this week's card party.

The auxiliary is planning an intensive program for the coming year and it is hoped to increase the membership to its full strength in order to successfully conclude the program outlined for the next twelve months.

The meeting tonight will be held in the Y. W. C. A. rooms, at 7:30 o'clock.

FARMER ROBBED OF HIS PROFITS

Dillsburg Man Held Up In Lemoyne On Way To His Home.

While driving his horse and wagon in the west end of Hummel street in Lemoyne early Sunday, John M. Kline, 65, of near Dillsburg, a farmer, was held up by two masked bandits, who beat him and robbed him of $30.

Kline was returning home from a market house in Harrisburg where he sold his farm produce. A flashlight appeared at the left of his wagon. Two masked men pointed revolvers at him.

He jumped from the right side of the wagon and started to run away. The men pursued him, and overtook him. One of them struck him on the head with the butt of a revolver. His pockets were examined and $30 was taken from them.

Either during his attempted flight or after the bandits overtook him, one of them fired a revolver at him, the bullet penetrating his overcoat, but missing his body. Kline Sunday night said that he was so unnerved by the hold-up that he was unable to say just when the revolver was fired.

After obtaining his money, the bandits left, and Kline went to the home of a Hummel street resident, who took him to the Harrisburg hospital.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Charles Renshaw, Gettysburg college; Gilbert Hollern, Harrisburg; Harry Hartzell, Fairfield; Curtis W. Peters, Biglerville; Paul Underzagt, Gettysburg academy; Mabel Gettler, Littlestown, and Mrs. Nathan Smith, Abbottstown, were admitted as patients to the Warner hospital over the week-end.

Jennie May Jacobs, East Berlin, and Mrs. Charles Everhart, Littlestown, were discharged as patients.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Marriage licenses were issued at the office of W. A. Geiselman, clerk of the courts, Saturday afternoon, to John L. Miller, Straban township, and Goldie M. Epley, Mt. Pleasant township, and to Grayson McIntire and Grace C. Noel, both of Mt. Pleasant township.

Bullets Laced By Bucknell; Maroons Play Scoreless Tie

Heavy Bison Tribe Humbles Gettysburgians, 26-6, Before 8,000 Fans.

The men of Bream, defenders and wearers of the Orange and Blue of G-burg, were tumbled from their pedestal of undefeated teams in the country by the Thundering Herd of the Bucknell Bisons on Memorial field, Saturday afternoon, to the plaintive chant of 26 to 6, before a crowd estimated at 8,000 spectators.

It was a complete rout of the heretofore fast-stepping and inspired Bullets that had brushed aside such powerful foes as Villanova and Lehigh. Not once during the entire pastime did the Gettysburgians show even so much as a spark of their former fire of gridiron cavorting. They were humbled before a large Father and Son day audience and for the first time this season tasted of the dregs of defeat.

The Bullets were handicapped, it is true, by the loss of Bill Stoner and Renshaw in the forward wall and Santinello's return to the lineup, after a siege of illness, failed to, to swing over New York city. (Continued on Second Page)

Mrs. Francis P. Thompson, wife of a Cazenovia, New York, millionaire, and Howard Larkin, of New York, who, she alleges, was one of the men who attempted to blackmail her for the sum of $2,000.

Brock Follows His Partner; Takes Life

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (AP).—Sidney F. Tyler Brock, of Reilly, Brock & Co., brokers, committed suicide Sunday, police said, by shooting himself in the head.

His senior partner, George K. Reilly, took his life in a similar manner last Thursday.

The authorities expressed the belief that business worries had led both men to take their lives and were seeking to determine whether the double tragedy was the result of a suicide pact.

The day after Reilly committed suicide Brock made a general assignment to officials of the Pennsylvania company for the purpose of liquidating the assets of the brokerage concern.

Poultry Meeting Place Change Is Announced

The poultry meeting for the Littlestown district will be held at Schottie's restaurant, Littlestown, Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock, instead of Wednesday evening as previously announced. M. T. Hartman, Adams county farm agent, announced today. C. O. Dossin, poultry extension specialist of State college, will address the meeting which is open to the public.

STOCK REPORT

New York, Oct. 27 (AP).—Stock prices drifted slowly downward in the earlier trading today. Farm implement shares again were weak. Efforts to bolster the market were hampered by the announcement of another stock exchange failure.

Driver Held On Drunken Driving Charge In Crash

After his machine sideswiped the automobile of Charles McDannell, Gettysburg R. 4, on the Gettysburg-Fairfield road, Saturday evening, Roscoe McIntire, Fairfield R. 1, was arrested by Patrolman L. V. Bomgardner, of the local sub-station of the state highway motor patrol, on a charge of operating a car while under the influence of liquor.

Arraigned before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer, McIntire was committed to the Adams county jail in default of $500 bail. He was still in custody at the jail this morning.

Both machines were traveling toward Gettysburg. McIntire, according to Patrolman Bomgardner, attempted to pass McDannell's car when the fenders of the two machines caught. Neither car was badly damaged in the crash and no one was injured.

According to Patrolman Bomgardner, McIntire's driver's license was only recently restored by the highway department following his suspension on a similar charge in Franklin county.

STUDENT HURT IN CAR CRASH

Stewart Mosebrook, York, Injured In Accident Which Kills Woman.

Stewart Mosebrook, York, a sophomore at Gettysburg college, was confined to the college infirmary today with injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Washington, early this morning, in which a Washington woman, employed in Harrisburg, was said to have been fatally injured.

Mosebrook, a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, suffered a wrenched knee, a head injury and shock. At the infirmary it was said he would be about in a day or two.

After the Gettysburg-Bucknell football game, Saturday afternoon, Mosebrook started to hitch-hike to Washington. He was picked up by the woman motorist, whose name was not learned, and taken to the capital city. The woman told the student that if he would meet her at 5:30 o'clock, Monday morning, she would take him back to Gettysburg.

The woman was driving between 55 and 60 miles an hour when she lost control of the machine on some loose dirt at the side of the highway, and the car upset, pinning her in the wreckage. She is said to have died later.

Passing motorists brought Mosebrook to Gettysburg.

Girls From Here Injured In Crash

Two girls were injured while a third and three youths, who told investigators they were students at Mt. St. Mary's college, were badly shaken up, when the light touring car in which they were riding went over a low embankment near Thurmont Sunday afternoon when a large truck going in the opposite direction forced them off the highway.

The three girls, who are supposed to have picked up the youths near Emmitsburg, were on their way to Washington from Gettysburg, where they spent the last week in connection with a national advertising campaign.

Two of the girls, Miss Eva Cornelius, 25, New York city, and Miss Mary Metzger, Canton, Ohio, were admitted as patients at a Frederick hospital. Miss Cornelius suffered a fractured nose and a ruptured eardrum, and Miss Metzger, severe lacerations and bruises. The authorities did not learn the names of the students.

Grundy Scores Dodge For Bolting Party

Philadelphia, Oct. 27 (AP).—Senator Joseph R. Grundy has sent an open reply to Kern Dodge, of this city, to a letter sent to Mr. Grundy when Mr. Dodge recently decided to support John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal party candidate for governor.

Senator Grundy in his letter declared that "presidential prospects of the Democratic party would be enhanced" by the election of a Democrat as governor of Pennsylvania and added "that, of course, is the project you are supporting and with which so cheaply have hooked your membership in the Union League."

"Your reference to my Republican regularity 'as camouflage' is equally offensive and just as lacking of any justification."

Local Business Man Fatally Injured In Automobile Crash

Two Companions Injured, One Seriously, When Car Runs Off Road On Highway Between Taneytown And Emmitsburg Late Sunday Night.

DIES AFTER LYING IN COMA FOR HOURS AFTER ACCIDENT

Richard E. A. Francis, West Middle street, well-known young automobile service station proprietor, died at the Warner hospital at 3:20 o'clock this afternoon of injuries suffered in an automobile accident on the Taneytown-Emmitsburg road, Sunday evening at 10 o'clock.

Francis, who would have been 35 years old in December, suffered a depressed fracture at the base of the skull and never regained consciousness after the crash. Hospital authorities held little hope for his recovery from the time he was admitted.

He was one of three young men injured when the car Francis was driving left the highway on a curve at Pine Hill, 2½ miles from Taneytown, and rolled over half a dozen times.

The others injured are Harry Hartzell, 35, Fairfield garage man, who suffered concussion of the brain and multiple lacerations of the face and body, and Preston Weikert, 36, messenger at the Fairfield postoffice, who suffered bruises about the body. Francis and Hartzell were brought to the local hospital, but Weikert did not require medical attention.

Francis suffered a depressed fracture of the skull, and immediately following his admission to the Warner hospital an operation was performed in an effort to save his life.

After the accident, the trio were taken by passing motorists to the office of Dr. C. M. Benner, Taneytown, who advised the removal of Francis and Hartzell to the hospital. They were brought to the hospital in the Gettysburg ambulance, being admitted at 12:15 o'clock this morning.

The three young men had driven to a place near Taneytown and were returning home when the accident occurred. According to reports, Francis was driving at high speed, and failed to negotiate a sharp curve at the foot of Pine Hill.

The coupe left the highway and rolled over a number of times before it stopped about 100 yards from the highway.

Both Hartzell and Weikert were thrown clear of the machine as it turned over, but Francis was caught in the wreckage.

Hartzell was thrown 75 feet from the wrecked coupe and rendered unconscious. Weikert was also dazed in the crash and neither he nor Hartzell has been able to give a coherent account of the accident. Weikert said that both he and Hartzell were dozing when the accident occurred.

Hartzell's face was badly cut. He suffered a particularly deep gash on the left ear. He was seated between Francis and Weikert when the accident occurred. He is the only one of the trio who is unmarried.

The coupe was badly damaged. It was towed to Gettysburg this morning and attracted considerable attention. The top of the coupe was almost completely torn off and the frame was twisted, but none of the tires was punctured.

Francis has conducted an automobile service station on Buford avenue for six years. Previously, he and Dorsey Rebert were in the garage business in Race Horse alley here, the place being known as the City garage.

Francis, Weikert and Hartzell had gone to a place near Taneytown to transact business Sunday evening, it was stated. They left Gettysburg about 8:30 o'clock; had transacted their business and were on their way home when the accident occurred.

The dead man is survived by his widow and one daughter.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Martin Says Little About Newest Bolt

Harrisburg, Oct. 27 (AP).—General Edward Martin, republican state chairman, today issued a 17 word statement anent the resignation of Asa Martin, as republican county chairman in Pike county, home of Gifford Pinchot.

"I see Asa Martin has jumped the traces," said Chairman Martin. "That means Pike county will not be unanimous."

BULLETS

Bullets an eight-yard gain.

The first and only pass attempted by the Orange and Blue first team resulted in the first gain of seven yards. The next four passes were tried by the reserves, netting a total gain of 53 yards.

On the other hand the Bison tried nine passes and completed one for a gain of 20 yards.

The Bison advanced the ball from scrimmage 199 yards and the Bullets cracked the forward wall of the Bucknellians for 50 yards. The Bison made thirteen first downs and the Bullets made three. The visitors outdug twelve times and the Gettysburgians were forced to kick sixteen times. Gettysburg was penalized 40 yards, and the visitors, 55.

With the exception of McMillan's touchdown the closest the Bullets got to the Bison goal was at the close of the first quarter when they recovered a Bison fumble on the visitors' 34-yard line. They advanced the ball an additional six yards in four attempts.

THE ROSE IN THE DARK

BY
Roy Vickers

SYNOPSIS: Hallie Elmore, nurse who blinded Saxe Grannock by deserting him during a crucial treatment, and Rose Conaldine, the girl he loves but never has seen, are the same person, but Grannock is kept in ignorance of the fact because her presence is a help to him during the first shock of his blindness. Only Hallie and Lester Broom, Grannock's half-brother and her ex-fiance, know that Broom detained her from her patient while he was drunk. Hallie has learned her real name is Conaldine from Mrs. Bartholomew, friend of her dead aunt. Another Rose Conaldine in New York is told by her guardian, Mr. Perle, lawyer, that she is heiress to $50,000 a year income. Both Roses are told their father was Clem Conaldine, suspected murderer who never was caught. Lester threatens to tell Grannock that Hallie was the nurse who blinded him, unless she marries him as originally planned. Hallie disappears and Lester seeks the aid of Howard Leckett, private detective, in finding her. Grannock has gone to Baltimore for further eye treatment. Meanwhile Lester has met the heiress Rose Conaldine by accident.

Chapter 24 ROSE'S BUBBLE BURSTS

Rose Conaldine powdered her nose with satisfaction in the jolting taxi. She had left Lester Broom gazing, as she believed, longingly after her. Everyone said he danced divinely. She did not hope he'd be at the Club Rivolet tonight. Her luncheon with Mr. Perle, her detested guardian, was all that was spoiling the day.

Tomorrow her car was to be delivered. Next week she moved into Cynthia Diffey's flat. She must tell Mr. Perle that. Since he had handed her her first check she had not seen him at all.

"I shall be rid of him soon, anyhow," said Rose aloud. "I'm rid of him now, really. I'm rich—rich—and I've nothing to do but spend my money."

She had, as usual, figured too closely and she was more than half an hour late when she walked into Mr. Perle's office. She burst into a flood of excuses.

"Ah, yes! The traffic problem is becoming serious," agreed Mr. Perle. "Fortunately, I had allowed a liberal margin for our talk to gether."

He escorted her to a quiet old hotel—Randallson's. For further seclusion, he had engaged a private room.

"This is the only place where we can be sure of remaining utterly undisturbed," Mr. Perle said. "It is old-fashioned, is it not?"

"I haven't had a chance of telling you yet," Rose said, "but I've arranged to share Cynthia Diffey's apartment with her, for a time, anyway."

Mr. Perle ate cheese and said nothing.

"Praps yo utthink—" began Rose. But as it had always been impossible to guess what Mr. Perle was thinking, she retreated from that line of attack. "I'm of age and I suppose my money is my own to do as I like with." She tried not to make it sound impertinent by adding—"And I'm sure you'll be glad enough to be rid of me. I've been an awful curse to you, I'm afraid."

It became evident that Mr. Perle intended to consume the last morsel of his cheese and crackers before he answered her. Rose twisted her hands together under the table and for the hundredth time adjured herself not to be such a rabbit. What did he matter? As soon as she had arranged all about her money, she need never see him again.

An ancient waiter entered, cleared the table as slowly as a waiter in a slow-motion film, and retired.

"I have a great deal with which to reproach myself," said Mr. Perle, as the door closed and the quiet of the hotel enswathed them.

Rose furtively studied her wrist-watch. It was very tiny, encased in platinum and encircled with small but very pure emeralds. It had made a hole in that check. . . . She must find out if there were any means of getting an advance on the next.

"I wish to tell you a little story," Rose sighed. That didn't sound as though she would get away within ten minutes, as she had hoped. She looked again at her watch this time.

watch, openly this time, but Mr. Perle completely ignored the action.

"It is a strange story and one based upon human weaknesses," Mr. Perle rolled the syllables round his tongue as they were a second savory. He had pushed his coffee-cup aside and now leaned his crossed arms upon the table.

"Some twenty-five years ago," said Mr. Perle, "a young man, descended from—I believe—an old Irish-French family, found himself so miserably unable to make headway along lines that were congenial to him that he was forced to make his living in a manner he despised. This young man, whose name was Clement Conaldine, was a cook."

Rose, at his first words, had braced herself for the name.

"He was, in spite of his private likes and dislikes, a very good cook. We first hear of him as one of the assistant cooks at the Parnassus. Most unfortunately his career there was cut short. His work gave satisfaction but he—ah—followed his private and working life to—ah—overlap. In other words, he became associated with a woman called Margot Muir who had been dismissed from the Parnassus staff for—ah—reasons. It is believed that Muir was also associated with a man named Bolt."

Rose knew now quite definitely that she did not want to hear this story. Also that Mr. Perle would make her hear it to the end.

"Conaldine shared with Bolt a passion for invention. The nature of their inventions was invariably domestic. Conaldine patented a form of cooking utensil which is today to be found in every home. Bolt was not so fortunate, although he appears to have been the more industrious of the two."

"Does my money—" began Rose.

Mr. Perle waved his hand and her voice died in her throat.

"At the Parnassus Conaldine had been able to save the greater part of his salary. When he was dismissed, he went to Pennsylvania alone and worked hard at some idea that seemed to him worthy of development. I cannot, of course, explain to you exactly what the conditions of his life were at this time but they were such that they brought him into contact with the charming and romantically minded daughter of a country minister. To shorten a tedious tale, my dear Rose, she married him. In fact she eloped with him."

"It is to be supposed that she knew he was only a cook but believed that he would make her a faithful and kind husband. Herein she was most tragically mistaken. When their daughter was only one year old, he abandoned her without making the slightest provision for her future and returned to the woman Muir. It was, of course, necessary that he should earn a livelihood for himself and Muir and he took a post as cook in an insignificant private hotel in South-cliff. Muir took rooms nearby and there in due course, a daughter was born."

"It would seem that Conaldine's affection for this unfortunate woman and her child was of no more stable a nature than his so-called affection for his wife; for when Muir's child was somewhere near its first birthday, the father left Southcliff and went to New York. And there he fell in again with Bolt. . . . for a short time they worked together and then there was a quarrel—a very violent quarrel. A part of it was overheard. An hour later Bolt was found very brutally murdered and Conaldine had disappeared. Although the most exhaustive search was made for him, he was not found. He has never been heard of again."

Rose was twisting her watch round and round her wrist. There would work out presently what it was. . . . Then she knew that Mr. Perle was going to work it out for her.

"All this happened, my dear Rose,

OLD STRUCTURE IS BEING RAZED

Maltby Building, Used By Senators For Years,
Is Being Razed.

By Herbert Plummer
Washington—Another old structure on capitol hill, rich in memories, has fallen in the hands of a wrecking crew—

The Maltby building, just northwest of the capitol, for 17 years used by United States senators for their offices, is being razed in the new plaza park development which will surround the federal legislative and judicial establishments.

In 1889, when Harrison was inaugurated, the Maltby house was one of the leading hotels. It was the center of activity of the various state delegations for the inauguration ceremonies.

Three years later, however, the senate took it over to provide private offices for members. Freshman senators were assigned there, for the quarters were considered less desirable than those in the capitol.

Four Remain
Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, once had his offices in the Maltby. Others were Joseph Bailey, of Texas, Robert La Follette, Sr., of Wisconsin, William A. Clark, of Montana, Edward D. White, of Louisiana, later chief justice of the United States; James K. Jones, of Arkansas, John P. Jones, of Nevada, Matthew Quay, of Pennsylvania, David B. Hill, of New York, and others.

Only four now in the senate had offices in the Maltby. And they are the oldest senators in point of service: Senator Simmons, democrat, of North Carolina, who entered the senate in 1901; Senators Overman, a democrat from the same state, and Smoot, of Utah, a republican, who took their seats in 1903, and Senator Borah, republican, of Idaho, who entered the senate in 1907.

These senators were forced to put up with many inconveniences unknown now. For example, there were only a half dozen telephones in the Maltby. There was a booth on the main corridor of each floor, and if a senator was called or wished to use the phone, he had to leave his office to do so.

In the senate office building now there are some 600 telephones.

No Waits Now
But perhaps the greatest inconvenience was that they had to brave all sorts of weather to answer roll calls. Through rain and snow, heat and cold they were forced to make their way to and from the capitol up the hill.

Now, in bad weather, they are rapidly whisked through a subway, which connects the capitol and their offices, in a railway car.

As an illustration of the difference between now and those days, I am reminded of an experience of Senator Perkins of California.

On the occasion of Washington's birthday, the senator was chosen to read Washington's Farewell Address. Unknown to him, the senate had convened an hour earlier that day.

A page was dispatched to the Maltby to find Senator Perkins. He located him in his office, feet propped on a desk, familiarizing himself with what he was to read. When told that the senate awaited him, he ran all the way to the capitol.

But the ascent of the hill was too much. Senators had to wait another 30 minutes until Perkins could catch his breath.

"Yes," said Mr. Perle very softly and elegantly. "I have, as I have already confessed to you, a great deal with which to reproach myself. I have made a most unfortunate mistake."

New York (AP)—The short bob is a thing of the past and longer locks mark the coiffure chic of 1930.

At least so says Charles Bock, New York hairdresser who numbers the smartest society women and actresses among his clientele.

"You can't have that short-short hair and be smart any more. The

STAR-GAZERS TO LOOK FOR SIGNS

Election Expected To Show
Trend For 1932
Candidates.

By Byron Price

Washington (AP)—The off-year election of 1930 furnishes extraordinary enticements to those political star-gazers who are seeking some portent of the presidential year 1932.

The turn of events has brought into interesting juxtaposition some of the most luminous members of a somewhat numerous constellation of presidential possibilities.

Nearly all the aspirants who are in active politics are on the party ticket this year in some capacity.

Both sides agree that the result this year might have a direct bearing on the Hoover fortunes in 1932.

Among Ambitions

To mention but a few of those democrats whose friends already are talking hopefully of electoral colleges and 1932, Joe T. Robinson, Smith's running mate two years ago, is a candidate for reelection to the senate from Arkansas and Franklin D. Roosevelt is seeking a second term as governor of New York, in a campaign that has riveted national attention.

Albert C. Ritchie is his party's nominee, for a fourth time, for governor of Maryland; Thomas J. Walsh, the Teapot Dome prosecutor, is asking for reelection to the senate from Montana, and Robert J. Bulkley has won the notice of party leaders by his campaign for a senatorship from the normally republican state of Ohio.

On republican ballots, too, will be printed more than one name linked in political gossip with the White House.

HEAD HURT?

WORK won't wait for a headache to wear off. Don't look for sympathy at such times, but get some Bayer Aspirin. It never fails.

Don't be a chronic sufferer from headaches, or any other pain. See a doctor and get at the cause. Meantime, don't play martyr. There's always quick comfort in Bayer Aspirin. It never does any harm. Isn't it foolish to suffer any needless pain? It may be only a simple headache, or it may be neuralgia or neuritis. Rheumatism. Lumbago. Bayer Aspirin is still the sensible thing to take. There is hardly any ache or pain these tablets can't relieve; they are a great comfort to women who suffer periodically;

they are always to be relied on for breaking up colds.

Buy the box that says Bayer, and has Genuine printed in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin doesn't depress the heart. All druggists.

Notice to Landowners of Adams County

The only legal way to keep hunters off your land is to publicly give notice that your land is closed to them.

The Gettysburg Times will publish its annual trespass list, warning hunters to stay off lands. Usually up to 225 landowners in the county take advantage of this Gettysburg Times' offer to give warning to hunters.

We are now publishing this list which will be inserted throughout the hunting season.

The cost is only $1.00 for the entire season. If you want your land properly posted just drop us a card to that effect or call as on the telephone, giving name and location of your property.

The Times also can furnish trespass cards at the rate of six for twenty-five cents, or five cents each.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

Lorenzo Dow, the celebrated itinerant preacher gave two discourses to our citizens on Tuesday last, and one very early on Wednesday morning—in his usual eccentric style. He left us on that day for the South.

Married: On Tuesday last, by the Rev. Mr. Graves, Mr. Michael Shank to Miss Margaret Snider—both of Frederick county, Md.

On Thursday last, by the Rev.
Mr. Gottwalt, Mr. Jonas Weikie, to Miss Christina Meals, daughter of Mr. Samuel Meals—all of Menallen township.

On the same day, by the Rev. L.
Hinsch, Mr. Jacob Albertsen, to Mrs. Susannah Vance—both of Latimore township.

On the same day by the Rev. Charles Weyl, Mr. Jesse M. Hutton, to Miss Margaret Ann C. Young—both of Menallen township.

On Thursday, the 14th inst., by the Rev. Samuel Gutelius, Mr. John Ginnaben, to Miss Maria Merkle, both of this county.

The News From France Is Interesting:

It was said by the last advices from Brussels that the Prince of Orange was to set out for the Hague with proposals, the object of which was to require that Holland and Belgium should form two distinct federations under a federative government.

The conduct of the Emperor of Russia in recalling his Ambassador at the Court of France, and ordering Russian citizens to quit France, on hearing of events in that capital, had excited much sensation, both in Paris and London. It was generally supposed, however, that when he learned that Charles X had abdicated, he would be induced to adopt a different course.

The English government, has, it seems, recognized the new government of France.

The French Ambassador at Vienna has returned to Paris, and reports the most favorable disposition on the part of Austria to make a similar recognition.

Died: On Sunday last, Mrs.

Esther Barclay, wife of Mr. Andrew Barclay, of this borough, aged about 27 years.

On same day, an infant child of Mr. John Barrett, of Mountjoy township.

On Thursday evening, the 7th instant, after a severe illness of three days, Mrs. Elizabeth Monfort, consort of Mr. Peter Monfort, of Mount-pleasant township, in the 26th year of her age.

Pedestrianism: We learn, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, that Newsam, the pedestrian, accomplished his thousand miles on the afternoon of the eighteenth day, since the commencement of the feat.—He is said to have been insulted by some individual towards the close of his journey, when he stopped and chastised him, and then went on his way to triumph.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Thanksgiving Day: By the Proclamation of the Governor it will be seen that he has appointed the 22d of November to be observed throughout this Commonwealth as a day of Thanksgiving and Praise. The citizens of this great State never had greater reason to be thankful than at present, for the rich abundances, which has crowned the labors of the husbandman, and the health which has pervaded all our borders. Ohio will observe the same day. Maryland and Virginia will be on the 15th; Massachusetts on the 29th.

On Tuesday last Henry A. Picking, Esq., the commissioner elect, was qualified and took his seat in the County Board. Although Mr.
Picking holds adverse political views, and in consequence thereof we labored hoefully for his worthy competitor, we have no hesitation in expressing the conviction that he will make a courteous, capable, and efficient officer. The retiring member of the board, Mr. Mickley, takes with him the favorable opinion and kind wishes of all who have had intercourse with him during the three years he has so creditably discharged his official duties.

The new Board organized by electing James J. Wills, Esq., President; and Jacob Aughinbaugh Esq., Clerk.—Star.

Paintful Event: On Saturday evening last whilst a political meeting was going on in Emmitsburg, at which a number of persons from this place were present, a young man, Edward Hall, son of Dr. Hall of this vicinity, was walking down the street when he was met by another young man of this place, named George Myers, who was under the influence of liquor we learn, and without any provocation other than a mere salutation Hall was stabbed by Myers with a large sheath dirkknife in the abdomen, and so dreadfully injured that but little hope is entertained of his surviving. Myers was immediately arrested, and after an examination committed to prison at Frederick.

NEW YORK Day by Day by O.O. McIntyre

New York, Oct. 27.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Bethmes to the station and missed a train for Boston. So prowling about the shops in the air-less tunnel running to 45th street and thought of a neat mystery story plot, yet when I telephoned
it to Arthur Somers Roche detected no enthusiasm soever.

To breakfast and asked a lady across table for the sugar bowl, but she swished her newspaper and scowled. And upon departing was almost tempted to say: "My error, Countess Sourpuss." Walking along the avenue passed Will H. Hayes, Nat. J. Ferber, Arthur Samuels and Gertrude Lawrence.

In the evening to see the harle-quines of Joe Cook, very amusing, and stopped on my way home to watch street gamins rolling dice in a 47th street doorway until one inquired: "What are youse, a fly cop?"
Thence to my quarters to read
"Doubloons" by Chas. B. Driscoll until late.

The Edgar Allen Poe neighborhood around 194th street and the Grand Concourse has taken on a distinctly Poe-ish flavor. A new apartment house is to be named "The Edgar Allen Poe," also a Poe drug store, an E. A. Poe cafeteria and a movie house called "The Poe" are on the way.

The new Waldorf is to have a special corps to attend to unfurling flags for the arrival of distinguished visitors on assumption dignitaries will stop at the new hostelry just as they did the old. The idea will be to have the proper flag flying as soon as the ink is dry on the guest register.

A gentleman recently went to the roof of his 42-story office building with an architect to see about some improvements. He was following the architect totally absorbed in explanations of proposed changes.
Suddenly he froze with the horrors, his hair literally lifting. In following he had stepped down on an 18-inch ledge to circle a chimney and was looking dizzily into the street below. This was more than six weeks ago and several time a day he sways and clutches for something.

The impulse suddenly to leap from high places afflicts many. An executive in a 60-story building has all his windows blackened to a certain height so he cannot gaze into the street.

A pet phobia of mine concerns a wild-eyed impulse to dash in front of approaching trains or step into an aeroplane propeller singing at top speed. The brown waste basket on the right is for the "Why don't you?" letters in order of arrival.

Three gay bachelor pals, who recently left celibacy flat for matrimony, foregathered with their wives for a homey dinner. Stimulated by several cocktails, they indulged a little frankness about their past. The wives encouraged them to further confessions, and they shot the works.
Each couple now lives apart.

IMPERFECTION
Whoever the man, whatever his post,
Whatever his fortune may be,
The day he longs for the sun the most
That morning his sky may gray be.

And whether he live in a cottage small
Or a castle with servants by him,
He must share his grievance with one and all;
There is something the fates deny him.

Not as we'd have it can life be made,
There is always a sigh to smother,
Today if one burden down be laid,
Tomorrow will give us another.

Great men worry and rich men fret,
And kings have care beside them,
And however arrogant mortals get
There is something that is denied them.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

A BIG WORD
"The yellow pumpkins smile along
The Old Rabb Fence today,
And many a bird, so I have heard,
Is on her southward way.

But I don't care if woods are bare
And snow will soon be coming,
I'll stay awhile and caw and smile
Where woodpeckers are drumming."

cried Professor Jim Crow from a tree near the Old Bramble Patch.

Cooking up his long ears, the little rabbit plainly heard the woodpeckers drumming on the hollow tree trunks like drummer boys in a regiment. So he got out his puggan and marched down the Old Cow Path, one, two, left, right, left, right, and pretty soon he met Chippy Chipmunk. The little fellow was gathering nuts to store away in his burrow; yes, sir, he knew that cold days were coming.

"How many bushels have you stored away?" enquired the curious little bunny, suddenly setting his pretty pink nose a twinkling, and a twinkling so fast that the little Chipmunk had to close his eyes.
"Please keep your nose still," begged Chippy. "It twinkles so fast I can't think; it makes my eyes go winky blink."

"Ha, ha!" chuckled the funny little bunny, giving his ears a wiggle waggle, "you just want an excuse;
you haven't counted the nuts."

"Well, maybe I haven't," admitted the little Chipmunk. "But I know when I've put away enough to last me till the springtime, just the same."

"Dear, dear," the next minute sighed the little rabbit, "soon many of my friends will be hidden away."

"The Big Brown Bear will hiber-nate—
Dear me, I almost hesitate
To use a word as big as that,
For fear you won't know what I'm at."

went on the little bunny, as a puzzled expression came over the little Chipmunk's face. Yes, siree, that little Chipmunk was wondering what hibernate really did mean.

"Does the Big Brown Bear know what he's going to do?" enquired Chippy Chipmunk, taking a round-

SUNDOWN STORIES

THE FRIEND'S HOME
By Mary Graham Bonner

The Little Black Clock had used his magic, which had been given to him a long time before, and had turned the time ahead a few years.
He was so lucky to have this magic, John and Peggy thought, and they were so lucky to live in the same house with such a clock.

Sometimes he turned the time way back to the beginning of things, sometimes only a little way back, sometimes way forward and again
only a little way forward.

But always, when he was not off on adventures with the children, the Little Black Clock's hands pointed to seven o'clock.

As the children knew, it was because he had chosen to accept the magic which allowed him to turn the time backward or forward rather than simply keeping the ordinary correct time.

Now he was taking them in a plane to see a friend of his—the friend whose face they had seen in an unusual looking glass when the Little Black Clock had called him up.

"I'm glad you got here quickly,"
said the friend as he greeted them.
He looked just as he had "over the telephone" as John and Peggy at once said.

He was a very nice gentleman and at once gave the children delicious ice cream.

"I hope you can stay around for a little while," he said. "I just love having company."

"You can see that I have chosen to have my home in this little village. I thought the rest and quiet would be nice."

"To be sure we have all the modern conveniences. We can see people when we telephone to them. We can get the power for our lights right out of the air."

"Yes, it's a nice place."
"It is nice out here," John added.

SITTING CHAMP
FOUND IN N. Y.

Man Has Been On Same Window Ledger In Bowery Six Years.

By Richard Massock
New York—Salvatore the Fish—no, let's start again.

This is the fragmentary story of Salvatore Mascini, sometimes called Salvatore the Fish, who might be called the champion of all titters since St. Simeon Stylite.

Or the philosopher of loafing. Or just the dean of Bowery bums.

For upward of five years he has been sitting on the same window ledge, doing nothing more than watching the statue of Peter Cooper, where the mean traffic of the Bowery terminates.

Tree sitters, marathon chair rockers and Shipwreck Kellys come and go, but Salvatore sits on.

Clam
A newcomer to Cooper square noticed this old man sitting in the same place every day. He was on a wide window ledge, about two feet above the sidewalk, his legs stretched out in comfort.

The window belongs to a tobacco wholesaler's building. But the men inside know nothing about the old man who sits outside. Employees who have been there six years said he was there when they came.

From about 10 a. m. to midnight he is in their window. None has ever spoken to him, and he has never spoken to anyone. That's New York.

So it was up to me to get his story.

"Trouble" ran throughout. He always got back to the word. What I am still wondering was the trouble that had caused him to give up steady work 12 years ago.

"Children, Trouble"
For he said that for 25 years he had been a barber. He came over from his native Italy 21 years ago. He now is 56.

Rags and dirt covered his body. A white, bristly stubble spread from his head to his chin, like the outline of continents on a globular map.

"Work?" he said. "Plenty of work. Easy to get now. Work for anybody. Good pay. Work month a year all right. Barber work no good. Nothing but drink, play cards all night, bed, bed, bed." All of this in Italian accent, drawn out by patient questioning.

"Work one-two day a week all right. Make two-five dollars. Enough for long time."
"What kind of work?"
"Mop floors, any work. All right if don't have child (children). Don't

New York—George Mayer is dead, and who's to take his place as Broadway's most celebrated need work. That why I never marry." That, about work being unnecessary if one has no children, with "trouble," was a constant refrain.

"What about sleep?"
"Two-three hour sleep a night good. Can't sleep more."

"Why do they call you Salvatore the Fish?" He had given that as his name.

"No work, no trouble, live like a fish."

He isn't a beggar. I offered him a cigarette. He took it with his first brief smile. His face is forbiddingly taciturn.

Nobody "touched" him, he said. He never spoke to anybody. That way "no trouble."

I offered him the package of cigarettes. He refused it.
"Tonight," he said. "I shoot bulls," and he pointed to the gutter.

"Good luck," I said.
He smiled again.
"Same to you."

year of his goal. Too bad.

Mayer attended every important opening since 1880. Always he and his mother were in aisle seats in the first row. Theatre treasurers reserved the same seats for him. And every year on Christmas eve he made the rounds of Broadway and said howdy-do to every treasurer of the box office.

For the some 6,000 openings of his time he bought approximately 11,000 tickets. Always he paid for them. If there were six shows opening one night, as often happens around Christmas time, he bought tickets for all six. He used those for the show he preferred to see and either gave the others away to friends or else they were unused.

Model
Mayer's story has been told on other occasions, but perhaps you missed seeing it. He was born on Spring street and remained a bachelor.

He first went to a show at the age of 17, sitting in the balcony of the old Niblo's Garden. He went for the first time on an opening night in 1880 with A. L. Parkes, dramatic critic for the old New York Mercury.

He saw Maude Adams make her debut as a leading lady to John Drew in "The Masked Ball." He saw Ethel Barrymore become a star in "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines." He was among those who first heard the tunes of "The Merry Widow" in 1907 and he remembered Tully Marshall uttering the first "goddam" of the New York theater in "The City." He was there when the critics walked out on "Abie's Irish Rose."

Mayer never walked out on a play before the final curtain. He was always in his seat on time. He never read the criticisms the following morning. He never played the stage door Johnny. He had no favorite actors no theories about the drama.

SPORT SLANTS
BY ALAN GOULD
ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

Modern football fandom is accustomed to mingling in crowds of 80,000 or more in the main centers of the east, mid-west and far west. Soldier field, Chicago, has accommodated several armies of spectators each numbering in excess of 115,000.

The pendulum of superlative gridiron performance has swung all the way from the old eastern strongholds to the ramparts of the far west, yet only ten years ago big crowds, measured by present-day standards, were a rarity. Pacific coast football was not even included among the records in Spalding's Guide, nor were western players given much consideration in Walter Camp's All-America selections.

Camp nevertheless appreciated the trend and wrote:

"The point most notable in the last decade has been the development of first-class teams in institutions whose prominence was less, so far as knowledge by the general public was concerned. Last season . . . the most notable instance was the coming of prominence of the Centre college team of Kentucky, coached by Charles Moran . . . Notre Dame also has come into prominence . . ."

It was in 1919 that Harvard made the one and only far western trip ever undertaken by a member of the old "Big Three," no longer so designated or regarded. The records at the time convey some suspicion that the Harvard boys expected to encounter a lot of Indians with tomahawks or frontiersmen in buckskins when they tackled the University of Oregon.

The Crimson won by a single point, 7-6, and discovered that far western football was substantially civilized in all essential respects.

Since then, these western boys have become a lot rougher and manifested a complete disrespect for the old eastern traditions. Notre Dame has "come into a lot more prominence."

Teams so widely separated as Alabama and Stanford, Georgia Tech and Southern California, Dartmouth and Nebraska, Pittsburgh and California, have all figured in the big disputes over national championship honors.

The Harvard A. A. "News" takes up the cudgels in defense of the policy of big college teams engaging small college "set-ups" for early October "battles," following the criticism of the Yale "News" that the Elis were not, in effect, sporting enough to meet Maine man for man, substitute for substitute.

"After all," remarks the Harvard publication, "the idea of intercollegiate athletics is not to get eleven men into competition, but to get as many men as are interested in playing. . . Small college coaches do not make an issue of the fact that their larger college opponents have more man power.

"There is much good that can be gained . . . the prospect of a substantial financial gain in a guarantee and the gamble of much desirable publicity in the metropolitan press (Shades of Old Harvard!)"

"From the coaches' standpoint there is the attitude of Dave Morey,

NEWSBOY IS AT HOME ON HORSE

Louisville Lad In Spotlight As Fine Jockey In Kentucky Races.

Louisville, Ky. (AP)—Now and then there comes along a lad who seems to be born with the instinct to handle high-spirited thoroughbreds.

Such a lad is Eugene James, 16, who up to a year ago was carrying a route for the Louisville Times. Already the old time turf fans are going back 20 years to talk about J. Lee, whose name in "tomorrow's entries" at Churchill Downs was of Bates, a year ago that his green team learned more and gained more confidence in the Harvard game than it could have done in any small college game. . . . There is the statement of Fred Brice, of Maine, that his players, after meeting a larger college team such as Yale, gained a confidence that enables them to play better football. . . ."

The Jockey club, controlling power on the New York turf, has contrived a ruling to boost Gallant Fox's earnings from $328,165 to $341,365, a world's record. It is reached by placing a value of $13,200 on the Fox's various trophies, heretofore not counted in the winnings of American horses.

The Jockey club, perhaps, was swayed by a desire to wipe out the disputed world's mark of $335,000, credited for years to the French horse, Ksar. This figure always has been looked upon as inflated and misleading, since it was based on a par value of 20 cents per French franc, whereas it was worth only about eight cents on the exchange while Ksar was galloping around the tracks.

Hurt in Spill

Once in a bad spill he was hurt and for a time it was feared he might not ride again.

Slight internal injuries and the loss of a few teeth, however, could not keep him out of the saddle.

Eugene is the son of George James, a railroad shop employee here, and is just over 16 years of age.

Berlin (AP)—Emil Ludwig, noted chiefly for his biographies, is reported at work on a play entitled "Versailles" and having for its theme the peace conference of 1919. Hero of the piece is Woodrow Wilson, pictured as a great idealist in collision with realities.

Moscow (AP)—Special clinics for crippled children are being established by the Soviet union. The health department estimates from incomplete data that there are 750,000 crippled children in the nation.
